

Now Recruiting: Production Associate Modern Apprentices

Our 18 Month Bottling Production Associate Apprenticeship has been designed to be inclusive for people with no manufacturing knowledge or experience to give you a foundation understanding of our industry.

This is a fast-learning program for people who are willing to learn and push themselves out of their comfort zone. You will gain valuable technical skills, an IBD Packaging Certificate that supports material science, and a SVQ Spirits Operations Qualification that will support future development opportunities within the whisky industry.

This blended learning approach is a mix of on-the-job training on a specific part of our bottling process where you will learn the importance of product quality, process improvements, and product traceability among many others.

To enhance your learning you will attend development weeks consisting of a series of workshops covering topics such as great teamwork, brand awareness, and communication skills. During these workshops you will be involved in several engaging tasks to allow you to demonstrate your personal growth and industry awareness.
