For further information

There is no shortage of information on referencing. Most academic institutions offer advice on their website. If you have plans to go on to a specific University it would be worth checking their website for information before you go. Below are a few examples:

Napier

Queen Margaret University

An excellent website for question/answer style information and general advice:

Anglia Ruskin University Guide to Harvard Referencing

<http://libweb.anglia.ac.uk/referencing/harvard.htm>

This gives a very good A –Z on referencing skills. Ideal for double checking the exact way to reference different types of resources.

Use References Section on word:
